

Sasha Rose Larocque-Firth

March 27, 1990-July 6, 2014

Silhouette

Could I have another moment?
Another kiss, another smile,
One more chance to watch
you sleep
Or just to sit awhile.

Ours to keep,
or so we thought.
We found we were mistaken.
Like most of those who've lost a child,
We felt we were forsaken.

When I watched your life
play through my mind, I can't believe I failed to see The silhouette of angel wings
There to set you free.

I no longer feel so angry.
You were heaven's all along, you see.
Our time will come to be with you
To share eternity.

- Author, Tony Doiron

Forever loved, Forever missed

